MLA Citation Guide

This guide contains citation examples for frequently cited source types. Examples are adapted from the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, 7th edition, 2009. Refer to the handbook to view additional examples, find explanations of in-text documentation, and study other characteristics of MLA style. There are several copies on reserve at the Library front desk.

This guide is not a substitute for reading and understanding the MLA Handbook, nor is it a substitute for what your instructor requires. You can also find the guide online in Research & Writing Help on the JSCC Library webpage (http://library.jscc.edu).

Books

Book by a single author or editor: MLA 5.5.2

Note: This is the basic MLA works cited entry. Include the author’s name (last, first), followed by the title of the book (in italics), the city of publication, the name of the publisher, the year of publication, and the medium (Print or Web). The publication information is found on the title page of the book. Note also that MLA now uses italics exclusively, whereas in the past underlining could be used instead of italics.

Note: “UP” is the abbreviation for “University Press” and “ed” is the abbreviation for “editor.” and is used again for the edition statement. Also, when the city of publication is not well known (like Paris, London, New York) you should also include the state.

Book by two or three authors: MLA 5.5.4

Note the arrangement of the authors’ names: Last, First, First Last, and First Last.

Book with an editor or editors: MLA 5.5.3

Note: “eds” is the abbreviation for “editors.”
Book by more than three authors: MLA 5.5.4

Note: “et. al” means “and others.”

Anonymous book (no author or editor listed): MLA 5.5.9

Book by corporate author: MLA 5.5.5

Work in an anthology or compilation: MLA 5.5.6

Note: This article is a reprint. It was first published in a magazine called The New Republic. It was reprinted in a reference work called Contemporary Literary Criticism.

Work in a textbook that contains many different works

Encyclopedia article: MLA 5.5.7

Scholarly article from a journal with only an issue number: MLA 5.4.3

Scholarly article from a journal with both a volume and issue number: MLA 5.4.2

Note: Unlike the sample above, this article has a volume (81) and an issue number (4)

Newspaper article: MLA 5.4.5.

Note: A is the section number; 1 is the page number. Newspapers are typically arranged by sections. For newspapers not published nationally, you must give the city of publication in square brackets.

Magazine article: MLA 5.4.6

NOTE: For a magazine published every week or every two weeks, you must include the date and month, as above.

Rosenberg, Glenn. “Sustainable Security: Implementing Eco-Sensitive Security Programs on Campus.”

Note: For a magazine published once a month, you include the month and year, as above.

Anonymous article in a magazine: MLA 5.4.9

Electronic Books and Electronic Databases

Note: Since most articles on the web can be found using a common search engine, the new MLA form does not require the inclusion of URLs in the works cited page. If your instructor requires the placement of URLs in the works cited page, place them in angle brackets < >. (MLA 5.6.1)

Electronic book: MLA 5.6.2

Scholarly article accessed in an electronic database: MLA 5.6.4

Note: There are two sets of things that need to be documented.

You must first give the documentation for the print source of the article (author, title of article, name of journal, volume and issue number, year, and page numbers).
Then you must document which database you used to find the information. You must also give the date that you accessed the article. Also indicate that you accessed the database through the Web.

Note also that in this example, 111 is the volume number, and 5 is the issue number

Controversial issue article accessed in an electronic database: MLA

Newspaper article accessed in an electronic database: MLA 5.6.4

Note: There are two sets of information that need to be documented here. First, you must give the documentation for the print source of the article (author, title of article, title of newspaper, the date of publication, and page/section numbers.). Then you must document which database you used to find the information, designate the “web” source, and give the date you accessed the article.

Magazine article accessed in an electronic database: MLA 5.6.4

Newspaper or magazine article on the web with an author or authors: MLA 5.6.2.b

Note: MLA gives conflicting examples in its handbook regarding online magazine titles. One sample for Newsweek shows Newsweek only but a sample for Atlantic Monthly shows Atlantic Monthly.com.

Newspaper or magazine article on the web (anonymous): 5.6.2.b

Web page with author: 5.6.2.b

Web site with corporate author

Web site with no author: MLA 5.6.2

Web site with no date given: MLA 5.6.2

Note: MLA now lists a variety of abbreviations that you may be required to use when listing online sources, such as N. p. (no publisher) or n.d. (no date of publication—see above).

Personal site: MLA 5.6.2

Email: MLA 5.7.13

Shimabukuro, Jake. “Ukulele Weeps by Jake Shimabukuru.” Online Video clip.

eBook: (Kindle, Nook, Ipad, etc.) (http://www.mla.org/style/handbook_faq/cite_an_ebook)

Begin the entry in the works cited list like the entry for a comparable printed work and end it with the designation of the medium of publication. The medium is the type of electronic file, such as Kindle file, Nook file, Epub File or PDF file. If you cannot identify the file type, use Digital file.

For example:

Most electronic readers include a numbering system that tells users their location in the work.
Do not cite this numbering, because it may not appear consistently to other users. If the work is divided into stable numbered sections like chapters, the numbers of those sections may be cited, with a label identifying the nature of the number.

According to Hazel Rowley, Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt began their honeymoon with a week’s stay at Hyde Park (ch. 2)

Interviews: MLA 5.7.7

Film or video: MLA 5.7.3

Coping with Challenging Behavior. Magna Systems. 2002. DVD.

Note: You should include the name of the film or video, the distributor, the year of original release, and the format. You should also give the release year of the DVD or Videocassette if it is different from the release year of the film itself. See Shane example above. The movie was released in 1953 and the DVD was released in 1997. Additional items such as performers may also be placed in the citation.

Tennessee Code Annotated: MLA 5.7.14

—If the act has a name:

—If the act does not have a name:

Note: The MLA handbook notes that citing "legal documents and law cases may be complicated" and that students should refer to "the most recent edition of The Bluebook: A Uniform System of Citation” for further instruction (205).
