

Citing Sources Using the APA Format

Examples are taken from various sources, including Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, sixth edition. Please refer to this manual for information on writing, your paper, including content, organization, style, and other information. A copy is available in the Reference area at Ref. BF 76.7.P83 2010 and at the circulation desk. This guide is not intended as a substitute for reading and understanding the APA Manual.

This guide is available electronically on the JSCC Library home page (<http://library.jsc.edu>).

You will see "APA Citation Guide" under the photograph on the right hand side.

The American Psychological Association has adapted the Digital Object Identifier as a means of locating specific articles. The DOI is a "unique alphanumeric string assigned by a registration agency to identify content and provide a persistent link to its location on the Internet."

One work by multiple authors

When a work has two authors, always cite both names every time the reference occurs in text.

When a work has three, four, or five authors, cite all authors the first time the reference occurs; in subsequent citations, include only the surname of the first author followed by et al. and the year if it is the first citation of the reference within a paragraph.

Wasserstein, Zappulla, Rosen, Gerstman, and Rock (2012) found [first citation in text]

Wasserstein et al. (2012) found [subsequent first citation per paragraph thereafter]

When a work has six or more authors, cite only the surname of the first author followed by et al. and the year for the first and subsequent citations.

Works with no author

When a work has no author, cite in text the first few words of the reference list entry (usually the title) and the year.
